Program Contents:

More than 30 years of experience as a lawyer and a lifetime of exposure to humorous people and events have created a backdrop for Beauchamp's presentations. Luther encourages his audiences to take their jobs, families, friendships and other responsibilities very seriously, but not to take themselves too seriously. He says "Most people can be funnier than they look."

Speaking to state, regional and national associations as well as corporate and educational groups, Luther Beauchamp delights audiences with his fresh, unique style. His humor is so clean he can take it to church...and he does. Luther has spoken for religious groups in more than 10 states.

One of his programs, "Humor from the H.E.A.R.T." is presented as an acrostic outline.

HHealth: Touching up x-rays won't help your physical condition but some of Luther's stories and comments will stimulate your laugh muscles.

Education: Continue your education by reading bumper stickers, finding the funny in the newspaper and following some of Luther's other suggestions.

Athletics: At nearly 5'4" he was not a great basketball player. Having experienced football as a student at Florida State and at Vanderbilt, he takes a humorous look at those traditions and other athletics.

Religion: Luther is serious about his faith but also shows how much fun you can have with the Bible and with church stories.

Teamwork: You may be convinced that you know Billy Ray and Cecil. Stories about these characters provide lessons in teamwork that will cause most to laugh and many to think.

Other inspiring and entertaining programs include "Amnesia, Ambrosia and Amnesty", "Love is a Laughing Matter" and "Secretaries are not Secondary".

Lawyer/Humorist/Author Luther Beauchamp

A short lawyer with a tall sense of humor, Luther Beauchamp delights his audiences every time. His Grandpa Callaway was well known for his wit. Luther says he inherited half of it.

Beauchamp's first book, "I'll Try To Be Short", is a collection of humorous stories about various members of his family. His second book, "Legal Shorts, Not Briefs" relates humorous events from his days in law school and his more than 30 years of law practice.

Lawyer, author and professional speaker, Luther is also a devoted family man. He and his wife, Vera, have 2 children and enjoy the status of grandparents.

Beauchamp is a graduate of Florida State University and Vanderbilt University School of Law. The main emphasis of his law practice has been in the areas of estate planning and administration and real estate law.
