More about Rick:

In 1995 Dr. Rick became a medical staff member for two professional sports teams the St. Louis Rams and the St. Louis Ambush.

Soon after, Dr. Rick sold his medical practice and founded a new company called S.T.A. Consulting Inc. whose primary mission was to introduce his team building concepts and systems into the corporate sector.

Dr. Rick was then hired by two of the largest corporations in America McDonnell Douglas and the Boeing Corporation's. He implemented his proprietary strategies on forming and executing self-directed work teams in all of their production facilities.

Throughout this project Dr. Rick had the opportunity to work directly with leaders from all branches of the armed services. Their goal was to increase the productivity of their employees, maximize their efficiency and cut costs. In the first two years the program saved each of the companies several million dollars and prevented layoffs at all of their facilities.

In March of 2000, Dr. Rick became vice-president of operations for Neurology Associates Group, Inc., where he helped the company grow from two multi-disciplinary medical facilities to 11 facilities in just three years. His success made Neurology Associates Group one of the largest medical practices in south Florida with more than 100 employees and revenues in excess several million dollars per year.

Dr. Rick's latest startup is Advantage Legal Seminars. The company was formed in 2005 and is now one of the fastest growing continuing education companies in its field. Advantage offers a full lineup of business and legal themed seminars and products and is currently approved for Continuing Legal Education (CLE) credits in more than 22 states.

Dr. Rick is a member of the National Speaker's association (NSA), the International Federation for Professional Speakers (IFPS) and is a board member of the Florida Speakers Association (FSA).

Whether delivering a keynote address or a full-day program, Dr. Rick's programs give your audience specific tools and systems that enable them to achieve great results.

What could this one man possibly say that is important enough for hundreds of companies such as Heineken, AT&T, and Boeing Aircraft to request his assistance? What did he say to the top brass of The United States Armed Forces that had him returning to their strategic headquarters year after year? A few minutes in Dr. Rick Goodman's presence, and the answers are clear -

Meet Dr. Rick Goodman – team physician for the world champion St. Louis Rams, and author of the best-selling book “Living a Championship Life – a Game Plan for Success”. Dr. Rick has been a team leader, coach, and successful entrepreneur for more than 20 years.

He doesn't speak, teach, or train from the text book – he passionately shares his life's stories and experiences, all set to a backdrop of laughter, discovery, and fun guaranteed for a lifetime of memories!

Early in life, Dr. Rick discovered that most championship athletes, teams, and organizations have two things in common with the world's most successful people - a game plan for the ultimate victory, and the ability to maintain focus.

The bottom line is that you, your team, and your organization really can achieve balance and success in all areas, and Dr. Rick shows you how. That's why associations, corporations, and meeting planners worldwide request Dr. Rick.
