

No Better Cause Muscial Entertainment

No Better Cause is a five-man pop/rock/funk/Christian a-cappella group out of the heartland of America: Lincoln, Nebraska. The band has been in existence since April 2002, but their sound brags a combined vocal experience beyond their youthful age.

In a little over two years, the group has recorded and produced four albums, with it's newest release set for August 15th, 2005 entitled "Immeasurable". "Immeasurable" is the group's first album with a contemporary Christian emphasis.

Awards

No Better Cause has received many awards, winning various state talent competitions. In 2003, the group won an award for "Best Original Song" at the Rocky Mountain Harmony Sweepstakes in Denver. And, in 2004, No Better Cause took home the runner-up prize at the same competition for "Best Vocal Group".

Exposure

No Better Cause will be touring to various midwest locations this fall including Kansas and Oklahoma. And, the group is currently receiving play on various radio stations nationwide, and is even receiving regular play rotation on internet radio shows broadcasting worldwide.

The history of the group is a familiar question to the boys, but their answer is simple:

"Two groups — both fragments of ensembles from our high school days — came together after my brother (Luke) graduated," explains Nate. Both he and Luke are brothers, and the two found an equal interest to launch a new, more focused group than past endeavours. The result came to be the hottest new vocal group in the midwest, No Better Cause.

Members have come and gone, but the goal remains the same for Nate Kellison, Luke Kellison, Zack Bjornsen, Michael Evans and Ryan Chappelle: excite and entertain audiences, create music (including the drums) using nothing but voices, and expose the midwest to true contemporary a-cappella music.
